

Conflict Management Summary

Students at Royal View are actively taught to act upon core values through our Conflict Management program. Selected students in grades two, three and four are chosen to be trained for six weeks in conflict resolution. Conflict Management training sessions cover such topics as understanding conflict, looking and listening for feelings, mediation techniques, role playing, and brainstorming for ideas. Once trained, student Conflict Managers are assigned to homerooms and take on the task of helping resolve small conflicts between students with mediation. Students learn that the starting point for conflict mediation is the "I Statement" which says: When you ____, I feel ____, Because ____.
